Air museum shuts its doors

The Canadian Air and Space Museum at Downsview Park closed to the public yesterday. The museum has until the end of March 2012 to find a new home for its collection of Canadian flight history. Visitors yesterday were invited to sign a petition and museum officials remain confident the museum and park will come to an agreement.

Commuting no roll in the park

Wheelchair users having some trouble accessing new TTC subway trains

The TTC is apologizing to riders with disabilities who are struggling to roll their wheelchairs onto the new Toronto Rocket subway trains.

The Rockets have many accessibility features, including flip-up seats to accommodate wheelchairs, mobility devices and strollers. Decals and blue lights on the train exterior indicate the doors closest to those designated accessible areas.

But, depending on the station and the passenger loads they're carrying, the new trains sometimes sit too high above the platform for wheelchair users to board.

The first time a Toronto Rocket pulled up in front of Jordan Lavoie, 22, at Eglinton, he couldn't get his motorized wheelchair up over the threshold.

"It's a nice train, but if you can't get on it, the interior doesn't matter," he said.

Lavoie, a freelance graphic designer who has muscular dystrophy, said he's heard complaints from friends, including a similar problem at the Dundas station.

TTC spokesman Brad Ross confirmed the Toronto Rocket's door threshold is not parallel with the platform, causing some problems for people with wheelchairs and mobility devices.

"When large numbers of people disembark, (the Toronto Rocket) reacts much more quickly than the (older) T1 or H cars and pumps the air suspension up," said Ross.

The old T1 subways have worn wheels and tracks so they ride lower than the new trains, he said.

The TTC's engineers are looking for solutions.

If someone can't board a Rocket train, Ross advised waiting for the next, most likely an older train that will accommodate the rider's needs. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Internet voting a game changer

COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Michelle Huycke of Markham voted online in the last election.

DECISION ONTARIO

Internet voting in advanced polls in Markham has helped increase overall voter turnout, engage non-voters to vote and greatly improve overall voter satisfaction, according to a research and public opinion report released today.

In the report by Delvinia, a digital strategy firm, voter turnout in Markham has increased by 35 per cent since the introduction of Internet voting in 2003, and much of that is attributed to the advent of online voting.

Eighty municipal elections in Canada have used Internet voting.

Michelle Huycke, 64, was among those early online voters in Markham last year.

She was among the 91 per cent of Internet voters who cast their ballot from home and among the 99 per cent who were satisfied with the online voting process.

Elections Ontario plans to have a pilot Internet voting test in 2012 and must report back to the legislature about alternative voting technologies.

Son bullied to death, dad says

Disabled Pickering boy took his life after he was mugged, bullied

CONTRIBUTED

▶ Mitchell Wilson committed suicide on Sept. 6 at age 11. His parents say he was never the same after he was mugged in November 2010 by an older student at his Pickering school.

By his 11th birthday, Mitchell Wilson had already endured a lifetime of pain.

He was eight when his mother died of cancer three years ago.

The next year he was diagnosed with muscular dystrophy, a degenerative and incurable disease that was slowly destroying his muscles and would one day leave him paralyzed.

And last November, while on one of his prescribed daily walks, Mitchell was jumped by a 12-year-old boy he knew from his elementary school in Pickering. The older child, who was after the iPhone Mitchell borrowed from his father to listen to music while he walked, smashed Mitchell's face into the pavement so hard he broke some of the boy's teeth.

The attack, Mitchell's parents say, led their son on a downward spiral that culminated in his suicide earlier this month.

"He was never the same after the mugging," said Mitchell's father, Craig Wilson, who found his son's lifeless body on Sept. 6 — a plastic bag tied around the young boy's head — when he went to wake him up for what would have been his first day of Grade 6.

The alleged mugger was arrested the day after the attack, charged with assault and removed from Westcreek Public School.

Wilson is hoping that by speaking to the media, visiting schools and telling Mitchell's story he can prevent other kids from being bullied and educate people about what it's like to live with a disability.

"Ultimately everybody has to be nicer to each other." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Kenyan Boys Choir helps fans get ready for Shawn Desman

PHIL LAMEIRA/FOR METRO

▶Members of The Kenyan Boys Choir treated fans to an impromptu performance outside Toronto's Me to We store Saturday.

For a good five minutes, the sidewalk outside Toronto's Me to We store was filled with uplifting tunes and packed with dozens of dancing and clapping teens on Saturday.

We Day supporters were treated to an impromptu performance put on by The Kenyan Boys Choir — best known for their rousing performance at President Barack Obama's inauguration ceremony — as they lined up patiently, waiting to catch a glimpse and get an autograph of their favourite performer and speaker.

"We're here to see Shawn Desman," said 17-year-old Suraiya Jinah. "Spencer West is amazing too, he came to our school before."

Shawn Desman, Kardinal Offishall, Spencer West, The Kenyan Boys Choir and Free the Children co-founder Marc Kielburger were in-store signing autographs and greeting fans as part of the sneak peek event for tomorrow's We Day at the Air Canada Centre, where 18,000 students and educators will attend the annual performance put on by Free the Children to inspire and empower youth.

"It's always special when you do a show at home, just 'cause this is where you're from and people know that and they're very proud of it," said Desman. "It's all about the kids, all about meeting the people and supporting a great cause."

But not everyone was there for an autograph. One of the youth in line, Sinead Zalitach, who, when asked why she was there, responded, "For drought relief. I could care less who's appearing. That's not really the point. I've been coming to We Day since 2008, but I can't this year because I graduated from high school, so I wanted to come out today." PHOEBE HO

It's Offishall — rapper at We Day

For Kardinal Offishall, joining big Free the Children celebration 'just seemed like a natural thing to do'

HEATHER BUCAHN
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

Canadian rapper and record producer Kardinal Offishall arrived at Free the Children's Me to We store in downtown Toronto Saturday to throngs of excited youth lined up for a chance to meet him and Shawn Desman, ahead of their We Day performances tomorrow. Kardinal spoke with us about his involvement with the Canadian aid organization.

"For me, it's been really cool because I like to get involved with charities that I see really make a difference," says the 35-year-old Torontonian. "Free the Children really is empowering the kids and showing them that you can really make a difference from a young age. It's really just showing people that it is possibly to make a significant impact no matter what age you are."

Kardinal says he first heard about the work Free the Children does through his good friend K'Naan. "Then this year when (Free the Children) reached out to us to be part of the big We Day celebration, for me, it was just a natural thing," he explains. "I had heard about all the amazing things they did. ... There wasn't a lot of thought about whether I was going to do it or not. It just seemed like a natural thing to do," he says about agreeing to participate.

'Representing'

Of the 18,000 youth who will be packed into the Air Canada Centre tomorrow to see him and other award-winning entertainers, political activists and Nobel laureates, Kardinal Offishall says: "Screaming kids — that's the best kind. We will be representing for every single person who will be in the building that day."

Political pollsters feeling the heat

Scrutinizing methods amid controversial results and public skepticism Is polling art, science or bit of both?

For a half-century in Canada, pollsters have been turning the art of partisan politics into a science, of sorts. But the year 2011 — with its bundle of federal and provincial elections — could be shaping up as a time of reckoning for the political-polling industry.

"Skepticism is growing, increasingly, everywhere," said Mike Colledge, a pollster with Ipsos, whose company shook up the business this month with a sharply written assault on what it sees as dubious "innovations" from competitors.

Canada's eight leading pollsters gathered in Ottawa on Thursday at a session hosted by the Market Research Intelligence Association. Not surprisingly, all of them concluded they're mostly right, most of the time.

Nevertheless, questions have arisen this year about the impediments and limits to their accuracy.

For example, why were Canadians taken by surprise when the New Democrats surged in Quebec and the Conservatives won a majority in May? And who even answers telephone polls anymore?

Frank Graves of EKOS has probably been the most publicly penitent of the pollsters since the federal election on May 2, dwelling on why his pre-election numbers were so out of sync with the Conservative-majority result.

Graves doesn't blame the prevailing technology or methods. Rather, he believes pollsters are still focused on measuring public opinion as a whole, while the voting public is a much narrower, older, particular demographic. Pollsters, he said, should be looking for ways to measure what could be very difficult to gauge in any "scientific" way.

McGuinty serves it up in the city

A quiet weekend pledge to scrap a gas-fired power plant in Mississauga forced Premier Dalton McGuinty onto the defensive yesterday as his rivals slammed the move as a crass attempt to grab votes. McGuinty said the community had changed significantly since the plant was proposed by the Liberals in 2005, which was why the party had changed tack.

WALKING THE LINE

Hudak channels Johnny Cash

Tim Hudak is normally surrounded by supporters at campaign events, but when he broke out into song on yesterday, he was all alone.

At a construction site of a gas-fired power plant the Liberals said they would cancel, Hudak was in the middle of slamming Premier Dalton McGuinty for the "money pit," when a passing train drowned him out.

"I can do a little Johnny Cash while we're waiting," he said, and began to sing. "I see the train a-coming, coming 'round the bend," Hudak began, fumbling the lyrics a bit to "Folsom Prison Blues."

He looked to the local candidate and staffers to get them to join in, but there were no takers.

It's not clear whether he stopped because the next line was too low for his range, if he became self-conscious that he's no Johnny Cash, or he was sick of singing solo, but it wasn't because the train was gone. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NDP plan reckless: Liberals

The Liberals called the New Democrat financial blueprint containing a $2-billion contingency fund announced yesterday reckless, saying it is full of job-killing tax hikes. They also argued voters can't trust the NDP's "socialist economic theory," pointing to the party's record when Bob Rae was premier 20 years ago. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NDP says platform would 'help weather the tough times'

▶ Ontario NDP Leader Andrea Horwath speaks to media about her party's fiscal framework in Toronto yesterday.

Plan includes contingency fund but also promises to put aside extra $1B

DECISION ONTARIO

Ontario's New Democrats released their financial blueprint containing a $2-billion contingency fund yesterday as they positioned themselves as the party with the best plan to handle another economic slump.

NDP Leader Andrea Horwath called the approach sound in light of the uncertain times ahead.

"We believe we put forward a very cautious and prudent and realistic plan," Horwath said.

"If things get bad, we have put in place a plan to help (people) weather the tough times, and still be able to meet our fiscal goals."

The NDP bases its numbers on the more cautious assumptions from the 2011 budget, unlike the Liberals and the Tories, who are assuming revenue growth of between $400 million and $500 million over the next four years.

Given the shaky state of the global economy, the NDP calls the other parties' assumptions a gamble, because the province would end up with an even bigger deficit if their projections prove optimistic.

The New Democrats also said their platform would cost $3.3 billion, compared to $3.6 billion for the Liberals and almost $6 billion for the Tories. THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ A Libyan man, who says his son had been killed in Tripoli's Abu Salim prison, reacts yesterday as National Transitional Council officials show journalists what they claim was a mass grave containing the remains of more than 1,200 prisoners executed in 1996 at the grounds of the Libyan capital's notorious jail.

Mass grave found in Libya

Find has enormous symbolic importance for Libyans seeking justice for four decades of repression

A bone wrapped with rope and skull fragments scattered over a cactus-covered desert field in Tripoli are grim testament to a 1996 massacre of more than 1,200 prisoners by Moammar Gadhafi's regime.

Libyan officials announced yesterday they have found the site of a mass grave believed to hold the remains of the victims after capturing former security guards who revealed its location as well as receiving witness accounts.

Excavation has not begun in the field outside the white walls of the notorious Abu Salim prison, although several bone fragments and pieces of clothing already have been found in the top soil.

Soldiers and relatives sifted through the sand during a visit yesterday, displaying a pair of pants and other remains for reporters brought to the site.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Crackdowns

- The June 26, 1996, killings became a focal point for opposition to Moammar Gadhafi who waged fierce crackdowns against any sign of dissent.
- Most of the inmates were political prisoners, including Islamic clerics and students who had dared to speak against Gadhafi.

Protest a dud in Algeria

A new "day of rage" was called recently in Algeria, a violence-scarred North African nation. But when the allotted time arrived, nobody showed up: The colonnaded boulevards in the heart of Algiers on May 1st Square were quiet, with just a few scattered shoppers milling about.

Like much of the rest of the Arab world, protests swept through Algeria earlier this year calling for more democracy, but they have since fizzled. The latest call on Facebook and other social networking sites for a new revolt on Sept. 17 was roundly ignored.

The fall of Moammar Gadhafi in neighbouring Libya after a seven-month civil war has turned the focus onto Africa's largest country, and the question of whether its military-dominated government could also succumb to the sweeping uprisings.

Settlement freeze still an obstacle in peace talks

The Quartet of Mideast mediators — the U.S., European Union, Russia and UN — issued a statement on Friday calling for a resumption of peace talks without preconditions and a target for a final agreement by the end of 2012.

Israel's foreign minister, Avigdor Lieberman, said yesterday that his government should accept the Quartet proposal.

But Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas signalled it was a nonstarter as long as it doesn't include a settlement freeze.

"We will not accept anything but ... a halt to settlement construction completely," he said.

Amid the impasse, both Israeli and Palestinian officials have expressed fears that the tensions could explode into violence.

One Palestinian was killed in the West Bank on Friday after a clash between settlers and villagers.

Yesterday, residents in the same village, Qusra, found 400 olive trees uprooted or destroyed. They blamed residents of a nearby hardline settlement.

Farmer Ayman Odeh said the trees were laden with ripe olives — an important cash crop for the village. "Imagine how long we worked on those trees, to see them broken now," Odeh said.

Extremist settlers frequently destroy Palestinian-owned olive trees to protest what they feel is unfair treatment by the Israeli government. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UN bid rejuvenates leader's legacy

Recognition speech bolsters popularity at home Israel, U.S. oppose the bid, saying no substitute for negotiations

President Mahmoud Abbas received a hero's welcome yesterday from thousands of cheering, flag-waving Palestinians, having made a bid for United Nations recognition that appears destined to fail but has allowed him to finally step out of the shadow of his iconic predecessor Yasser Arafat.

The dynamic public appearance was a noticeable change for the 76-year-old Abbas, who was elected shortly after Arafat's death seven years ago. While Arafat was known for his trademark olive-green military garb and fiery speeches, Abbas favours suits and typically drones on in monotone.

BERNAT ARMANGUE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We have told the world that there is the Arab Spring, but the Palestinian Spring is here..."
PRESIDENT MAHMOUD ABBAS

Abbas' calls for nonviolence and his successes in restoring law and order to the West Bank have won him respect in Israel and abroad.

But at home, he is often seen as weak and ineffectual in his dealings with Israel and the rival Hamas movement, which seized control of the Gaza Strip from his forces in 2007.

It is unclear what the UN application will actually accomplish.

The U.S., as a member of the Security Council, has already promised to veto the request if the Palestinians can muster the nine votes needed for passage — which itself is far from certain.

Our leader, our teacher, our friend.
Stephen E. Dupuis
1959-2011

Our leader, our teacher, our friend.

It is with great sadness that we announce the sudden passing of Stephen E. Dupuis, President and CEO of the Building Industry and Land Development Association (BILD) on September 23, 2011. A dedicated family man and proud resident of Aurora, Ontario, Stephen is survived by his wife Linda and two children Kendall and Carson.

Stephen served as the inspirational leader of the building industry association for more than 25 years. He was the highly-visible face of the association with spiky hair, a razor-sharp sense of humour and a clear message. Throughout Stephen's career he was a consummate professional. He was extremely adaptive to the ever-changing political and economic landscapes. He always put the members' needs first and he penned thousands of newspaper and magazine columns highlighting industry issues and consumer concerns, making BILD a leading advocacy association in the Greater Toronto Area.

He joined the association in 1988 in a government relations capacity following stints with the Association of Municipalities of Ontario (1985-1988) and the Ontario Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing (1982-1985). Stephen was the Executive Vice-President of the Greater Toronto Home Builders' Association and was instrumental in the seamless merger with the Urban Development Institute in 2006, when he was named its first President and CEO of what is known today as BILD.

Stephen worked tirelessly for BILD, the Ontario Home Builders' Association (OHBA) and the Canadian Home Builders' Association. He passionately championed a community partnership with Habitat for Humanity. Exemplifying strength and unity, he will always be remembered by his colleagues and peers as a source of strength, experience and wisdom, which he was always willing to share.

On Thursday, he was honoured by his peers at the OHBA with the inaugural David Horton Lifetime Leadership Award of Excellence, which he emotionally told friends was one of the proudest moments of his career. To us at BILD, he was more than the President and CEO, he was more than our boss. He was our no-nonsense leader. He made things happen, he valued what was important and always knew the right thing to say and do. He was our leader, our teacher, our friend.

Whatever the situation was, Stephen knew there was a song about it and he kept us whistling with his uncanny ability to quickly quote lines from his library of favourite tunes. His sharp wit, humour and boisterous laugh still resonates in the halls of 20 Upjohn, where we will always continue to celebrate him and the impact he has left on our lives.

When Stephen would take to the podium at BILD events, he would always announce how proud he was to be President and CEO of BILD. Stephen, BILD and its 1,350 member companies are proud of you.

You will be celebrated. You will be remembered. You will be greatly missed.

Pakistan holds urgent talks

Denounces American claim that army supports terrorism Warns U.S. against sending in troops

Pakistan's army chief convened a special meeting of senior commanders yesterday after U.S. allegations that the military's spy agency helped Haqqani insurgents to attack American targets in Afghanistan, the army said.

Pakistan also summoned home its foreign minister from a trip to the United States to discuss the American allegations.

Senior Pakistani officials have accused the U.S. of trying to make Pakistan a scapegoat for its troubled war in Afghanistan. The confrontation has plunged the already rocky U.S.-Pakistan alliance to new lows.

War of words

- Adm. Mike Mullen, a senior U.S. military officer, has accused Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence agency of supporting the militant Haqqani network in planning and executing an assault on the U.S. Embassy in Afghanistan on Sept. 13 as well as a truck bomb that wounded 77 U.S. soldiers.
- Despite the seriousness of the U.S. claims, which appear to accuse Pakistan of state-sponsored terrorism, Mullen and other officials say Washington needs to keep negotiating with Islamabad.

Calgarian convinced many that pieces of space junk fell in Alberta

METRO CANADA IN CALGARY

Borrowing from a staged radio drama bought by many, a Calgary filmmaker perpetrated a space-junk hoax that sparked worldwide attention over the weekend.

Sebastian Salazar was watching his Twitter feed fill with discussion of NASA's dying Upper Atmosphere Research Satellite (UARS) shortly before midnight Friday.

An anomaly over Okotoks, Alta., on one weather image sparked speculation that debris from the 6.5-ton craft could land in the city south of Calgary.

One particular tweet expressing fear that aliens could be living in the satellite caught Salazar's attention, reminding him of Orson Welles' fake 1938 radio broadcast War of the Worlds, which led many to believe aliens had landed.

He pulled transcripts from the broadcast and began tweeting them out as live events occurring on a farm in the Okotoks area.

"People weren't even checking for legitimacy anymore," Salazar said yesterday.

To provide "proof" of the debris, Salazar gathered some tubing and a piece of scrap metal from his family's camper and took a photo.

RCMP spokesperson Tim Taniguchi said Salazar likely won't face reprimand for his actions, despite some expressing outrage over the hoax online.

Waiting for verdict a strain on Knox: Friend

A friend of Amanda Knox's says the jailed American student can't sleep or eat properly as she awaits to know if an appeals court will uphold or overturn her murder conviction.

A verdict is expected in early October.

Knox (pictured above) was convicted of murdering Meredith Kercher, her British roommate in Perugia, Italy, in 2007 and sentenced to 26 years in prison.

Madison Paxton, a university friend who visits Knox in prison regularly, told The Associated Press that Knox has no energy and tires easily.

19 die in plane crash

◗ Plane broke into pieces after hitting roof of village house, witness says ◗ No casualties on the ground

A plane returning from a sightseeing tour of Mount Everest crashed while trying to land in Nepal yesterday, killing all 19 people on board, including 13 foreigners, officials said.

Ten Indians, two Americans and one Japanese were among the victims.

The turboprop plane belonging to Buddha Air was also carrying three Nepalese passengers and three crew members when it crashed in Bisankunarayan village, just a few kilometres south of the capital, Kathmandu.

The Beechcraft 1900D plane — manufactured by Raytheon Aircraft, now known as Hawker Beechcraft — had taken the passengers on a one-hour "mountain flight" and was returning to Kathmandu.

The weather yesterday morning was foggy and the visibility was poor around Kathmandu, according to meteorologist Rajendra Shrestha. The surrounding mountains were enveloped in fog and it was raining at the time of the crash.

Husband faces murder charge

About 200 people hold candlelight vigil outside U.S. building where missing Montreal woman's body found

A New Jersey man has been charged with killing his Canadian-born wife after police found her remains in a cement-filled drum.

Prosecutors said Steven Acuna was charged after police found the remains of Randy Lehrer on Friday in the basement of a Jersey City building where she lived with her husband and infant daughter.

Lehrer, 32, is originally from Montreal and still has family in the city.

Acuna reported her missing Aug. 17 after an argument.

Investigators in Hudson County said they believe the killing was a domestic violence situation.

▶ Randy Lehrer was originally from Montreal.

Irene Theofanibis, a friend of Lehrer's, said Lehrer had told her about threats made by her husband.

"She was afraid," Theofanibis said.

Acuna was being held yesterday at the Hudson County Correctional Facility in lieu of $1-million US bail.

A Facebook group was created to raise money to help bring Lehrer's body back to Montreal for a funeral and pay for legal fees that would return her child to the city.

"I hope they bring that baby to Canada," a woman who identified herself as Amie Scarola wrote on Facebook.

"At least they will always let her know who her mom is (and) how much she loves (and) cares about her."

▶ Mark Carney, governor of the Bank of Canada, speaks during the annual membership meeting of the Institute of International Finance on Saturday in Washington, D.C.

Carney scolds critics of reforms

Says Canada expects to be compliant with new banking rules by early stages of implementation period

Canada's Mark Carney yesterday waded into one of the most touchy and controversial issues facing the American financial system, dismissing concerns — or excuses — about banking reform.

Speaking at a financial convention in Washington, the Bank of Canada governor gave a spirited defence of new international rules, and chided resisters as either misconceived or fatalistic.

He noted that such thinking led to abuses and excessive risk-taking that resulted in the recent collapse of the system, leading to a worldwide recession that is still haunting economies today.

"The issue in the crisis economies is primarily one of demand, not supply."
MARK CARNEY,
BANK OF CANADA GOVERNOR

He reserved his scorn for what he called the most often cited objection — that the uncertainty about proposed new requirements for greater bank capital reserves is already drying up credit and contributing to the current economic weakness.

He scoffed at the suggestion. "Really?" he asked.

He pointed out that it is a far greater probability that credit has slowed not because of a reluctance to lend, but because would-be borrowers can't afford more debt.

In countries like Canada that did not experience a home-grown financial crisis, the issue has been of households borrowing too much, not too little, he noted.

Emails

The attacks took a toll on government IT workers, as time stamps on emails show they were dealing with the issue almost around the clock in the early part of February.

- One email raised concern about staff burnout, while another sought to mobilize volunteers for the weekends to help get the system up again.
- After the initial shutdown, government employees were allowed access to internal sites, but in order to see external sites they had to submit specific requests for approval.
- Documents show employees sought access to news, travel bookings and Google. News and travel were allowed, but not Google.

Hackers had head start: Docs

Culprits never identified ◐ Unconfirmed reports say based in China

Hackers may have had a four-day head start when they broke into government systems in January in an attack that continues to leave many employees without full Internet access and revealed flaws in the security of federal computers.

Documents obtained by The Canadian Press say the Treasury Board and Finance departments were notified of "harmful activity" on Jan. 24.

However, Communications Security Establishment Canada went back to the departments on Jan. 28, a followup that provided "our first realization of the severity of the problem," according to a draft action plan written by the agency after the incident.

Exactly what damage the hackers managed to do was censored in the hundreds of pages of emails, reports and other documents released under the Access to Information Act. But a Jan. 31 note says the attack was serious.

Lobbyists reject push to rejig Greece debt

The international bank-lobbying group that has been taking a leading role in negotiations on giving debt-ridden Greece easier terms for its bonds yesterday rejected calls to impose larger losses on private investors.

Forcing private creditors to write down their Greek bond holdings by more than the 21 per cent tentatively agreed to in a July deal would quickly cause a "domino effect" that would see the crisis spread to other parts of Europe, warned Josef Ackermann, the outgoing chairman of the Institute of International Finance.

Germany and other rich eurozone nations have been pushing for a re-negotiation of the July deal, arguing that the economic situation in Greece has significantly deteriorated and may require a steeper cut in the country's debt burden. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. jobs hole too big to fill?

Even if Congress heeds U.S. President Barack Obama's demands to enact his jobs and tax plan in its entirety, the U.S. unemployment rate probably still would hover in nosebleed territory for at least three more years.

Why? Because the 1.9 million new jobs the bill is expected to produce in 2012 falls short of what's needed to put the U.S. economy back on track to return to pre-recession jobless levels of under 6 per cent, from the current rate of 9.1 per cent.

Asbestos industry launches effort to clean up image

GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A prominent asbestos merchant is headed to Parliament Hill in a broad counter-offensive to salvage the reputation of his beleaguered industry.

Baljit Chadha is fighting back after Canada's asbestos sector has absorbed a public-relations pummelling, both here and abroad, in recent months.

The Quebec government is considering whether to help Chadha save one of Canada's last two asbestos mines, in the town of Asbestos, with an Oct. 1 deadline looming on a decision.

Chadha is determined to dispel what he describes as myths about the contentious mineral, which he argues has been unfairly vilified by a highly organized "anti-asbestos lobby."

Chadha plans face-to-face meetings today with his most vocal critics, including New Democrat MP Pat Martin. The Montreal businessman also will meet with Rideau Institute president Steven Staples and communicate by teleconference with Kathleen Ruff, an asbestos foe.

"We have nothing to hide and we want to change the perception."
BALJIT CHADHA, INSISTING ASBESTOS CAN BE HANDLED SAFELY EVEN IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES WHERE THE BULK OF CANADIAN ASBESTOS EXPORTS ARE SHIPPED.

While asbestos is barely used in Canada anymore due to health concerns, Chadha said it's popular in countries like India where the fibres are often mixed with cement to make low-cost, durable roofs for small homes.

Boeing's plane finally a reality

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boeing has delivered its first 787 jet, which was supposed to be flying passengers three years ago.

The first one went to Japan's All Nippon Airways, which has been printing the 787 logo and "We Fly 1st" on its business cards for years.

Airlines love the jet, which Boeing calls the Dreamliner. They've ordered more than 800, well above levels for previous new jets.

Instead of the usual aluminum skin, most of the 787 is covered in carbon fibre. The matierial's strength allows windows to be bigger and higher. Electronic dimming replaces pull-down shades. The cabin is pressurized to the equivalent of 1,800 metres, instead of the usual 2,400 metres. That means air pressure will be closer to what passengers are used to on the ground.

And without corrosion-prone aluminum skin, the humidity can be kept higher. Those two changes should reduce dry noses and throats.

Where Better Medicines Begin

ADVERTORIAL

DUST MITES:

THE COMMON TRIGGER

DUST MITE ALLERGEN is the most common trigger for allergy and asthma throughout the world; yet many allergy sufferers are not even aware they are allergic to dust mite. Dust mites are microscopic bugs which live in mattresses, carpets, furniture and bedding. Normal activities, like dusting, making your bed or sleeping can trigger your allergy symptoms. Current therapies include the common over-the-counter antihistamines, as well as prescription medications. Please talk to your doctor about the treatment of your allergies.

Cetero Research, a world leader in conducting research to test anti-allergy and asthma drugs, frequently conducts what are known as Allergic Rhinitis or "Allergy" clinical trials. These studies typically involve periods of time in our environmental exposure room which is an allergy testing facility where we expose individuals to allergens like dust mites in a safe and controlled manner. This is done to test the medication by seeing how your symptoms are before and after medication.

A number of drug companies who specialize in allergy medications recognize the benefits of Cetero's research models and have worked with Cetero to test new and innovative treatments, such as new Immunotherapies ("allergy shots" and now even drops or dissolving tablets that go under the tongue). Previous studies show that immunotherapy may not only relieve your current allergy and asthma symptoms while you are taking it, but may also act to change the underlying causes of the disease and possibly even cure you of allergies.

Clinical Research Needs Your Help!

Cetero Research is always looking for males and females who may be eligible to participate in our clinical trials. If you qualify for study participation, Cetero will provide financial compensation for your time and travel expenses.

If you are interested in learning more or would like to register in our database to be contacted for future studies, call 905-629-5777 and speak with our Volunteer Contact Centre. Or visit our website at www.sneezetoronto.com

A WORD ON PEDESTRIANS

URBAN COMPASS

LIA GRAINGER
METRO TORONTO

The archaic and rarely heard clickity-clack of fingers on a typewriter echoes down Queen Street West. It's Thursday at 11 p.m., and Kaile H. Glick is furiously pounding on her 1950s Smith Corona Skyriter. Slowly but surely, a small crowd gathers around her modest setup, which includes a folding chair, a small table, an upside-down hat, and a homemade sign that reads, "The Spontaneous Prose Store." Glick looks up at her curious audience and asks them: "Topic, title or first line?"

The 22-year-old poet has been taking to the streets to write personalized prose since the beginning of June. "How can I get paid to write?" says Glick of the conundrum that inspired the project, echoing a common sentiment in literary circles. "This is my attempt to become a legitimate wordsmith."

"Glick will write you a custom piece of prose — usually 10 to 12 lines — based on your suggestion of a topic, title or first line."

Glick hails from Toronto but spent several years in Halifax and then San Francisco and found it difficult to break into the local poetry and reading scene upon her return. "For poets in Toronto, resources are limited," says Glick. Inspired by musician busker friends, she decided to try her luck writing directly for the people.

For whatever you're willing to donate, Glick will write you a custom piece of prose — usually 10 to 12 lines — based on your suggestion of a topic, title or first line. "There are a lot of requests related to love or revenge," says Glick. "And if there are kids around, cats." The creative process usually takes about three to six minutes, and donations range from a few cents to $50, though most people drop a few bucks in the hat. She says she makes about $50 to $80 an outing, and she does it a couple times a week.

"Yorkville is a good spot, because they only carry billfolds — no change," says Glick with a laugh. She's set up shop all over the city this summer and is currently looking for an indoor home.

Glick takes a carbon copy of everything she writes, and this November she'll be publishing an anthology of the hundreds of pieces she's created so far. "It's been a really empowering experience to engage people this way," says Glick. "When they throw money in my hat I'm like, 'You're paying me for this?' It surprises me every time."

See where Glick will be setting up shop next at thespontaneousprosestore.wordpress.com.

Don't have a condom? You could try this

Egyptian style. "In ancient Egypt, crocodile dung was used as a pessary. It sounds weird and revolting, but now we know that it's not as crazy as one might think as some of the ingredients change the pH value in the vagina to create a bad environment for the sperm."

Smooth condoms. "The first undisputed description of the condom — done by 16th-century Italian physician Gabriele Falloppio — mentioned it was made of cloth. This type did not feel very sensitive at all. In comparison, for a very smooth condom material, animal intestines or a fish's air bladder were used."

Ancient Rome. "Believe it or not, people did wear amulets like they do talismans as a means of contraception. Worn around the neck, these amulets contained ingredients we would describe as complete nonsense for a contraceptive."

Myths. "I once read in a British opinion poll that some women thought that by simply closing your eyes you can avoid conception. Other old-lady 'recipes' include washing after intercourse."

▶ Comedian Russell Peters co-stars in Breakaway.

Peters dares to dream

Comedian Russell Peters takes on the big screen in Breakaway Film about an Indo-Canadian hockey team a broader story of a regular guy with a dream

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Russell Peters may have mastered the comedy stage by selling out concerts (including Madison Square Gardens) around the globe but conquering Hollywood has taken a bit longer.

"The challenge for me has been getting the right roles," explained the Toronto native recently. "I've been offered a ton of (movie parts) but do I want to play the 7-11 guy or the taxi guy? Hence my movie career has been slower than most."

Things may be changing for the man who has sold hundreds of thousands of his comedy DVDs. Now co-starring in this Friday's release of Breakaway, Peters has found his place in what's likely the first-ever film about an Indo-Canadian hockey team.

"I'd like to say that I was the seed for (Breakaway) because I used to do a joke about an all-Indian hockey team," said Peters. "I used to do a joke about the Toronto Maple Sikhs and (writer and star Vinay Virmani) even told me that's what gave him the idea for writing this film."

It's an obvious point of pride for Peters, even if playing Canada's national sport isn't.

"I can't stand the game," said Peters. "There's a whole generation of Indo-Canadians that grew up loving hockey. I would go out and say I'm very much in the minority for not liking hockey."

Instead, Peters offers that he related to the film's central story about a striving first-generation Sikh athlete who must deal with issues of family and identity in discovering his life's ambition.

"It's really about the immigrant experience and it just happens to circle around this particular group," said Peters.

"But it's the same story for every first generationer. And even if you're not a first-generation immigrant family, you can still relate to it — it's about a guy with a dream."

Life of laughs

Why Russell Peters will never quit stand-up comedy:

▶ "Stand-up comedy is not one of those things you choose to do, it chooses you. If I have time off, my immediate reaction is I need to get on stage — it doesn't matter where it is."

Rebel with a cause

- Sam Childers is an unlikely hero to Sudanese orphans
- Biker with a checkered past subject of new film

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

PHIL BRAY/ALLIANCE FILMS

Sam Childers has had quite the unique life, going from a drug addict, convict and to a man of God who works tirelessly to rescue orphans in war-torn countries around the world. Dubbed the Machine Gun Preacher for his faith in both scripture and firearms while building orphanages in Sudan over the past decade, Childers has met with a surprising amount of resistance to his work. But resistance, he says, he can handle. How about the glare of the Hollywood spotlight? He now finds himself being portrayed by Gerrard Butler on the big screen; his past deeds, both good and bad, out for the world to see — and some of them, he tells Metro, never even happened.

Where did the nickname come from?

It started inside of Sudan when I first got there. When I started building the orphanage in 2000, I slept on a grass mat, and a lot of the village people would see me with a machine gun on one side and a bible on the other side, so they started saying, "This man is a preacher! But he has a machine gun!" So they started calling me the Machine Gun Preacher. Here in the U.S. there were a couple of stories titled Machine Gun Preacher trying to discredit me. The first time I read one I was kind of worked up, and God said, "Claim that name." It gets people's attention.

Did you have much say over what parts of your life ended up on screen?

No, not really. To be honest with you, they didn't use the most violent parts of my life. If they were going to really cover my life, they would've had to make a series. There's no way it could be done in one movie. And I hear there's even talk of doing some other stuff, too. Maybe they will. It's all in God's hands.

Do you take issue with anything presented in the film?

There was a few things that I did not do in that movie. There's a few things that might have been amped up in the movie, like the action scenes, but there's enough good that I'm satisfied. The one part in the movie where it had me robbing a drug dealer and saying a bad word to him because he's a black man — I've never done that before. Have I robbed drug dealers? A lot of them. But I've never used that kind of language. My dad's mother died when he was five years old, and he was raised by a black lady. So I grew up respecting people for who they are. I grew up not looking at colour.

Were you surprised by how the resistance your work has met with?

You'll be surprised. There's a lot of people that [don't agree with me]. I had a reporter yesterday totally against guns, and I asked him, "Well, your mother is across the street, she's been raped by rebels. You have a gun right here. What would you do?" And he says, "I don't know, I have to think about it." I said, "You don't love your mother." Bottom line. How can we say we have to think about it if it's our mother, our brother or our sister or a child getting raped by rebels? Why do you got to think?

Why do you think other countries have been getting more attention than Sudan?

You know, maybe it was just their season. Maybe it was just their time to get it. And I believe that, along with this movie and a lot of other people that are going to be speaking out, I believe that Sudan is going to get that attention now. I believe that this movie is not about Sam Childers. I believe that this movie is literally going to change a nation. South Sudan is doing a wonderful job of building their infrastructure, but Northern Sudan is still giving problems. All of these little rebel groups are all being fueled and financed by the president of Northern Sudan, Omar al-Bashir. In Darfur, there's over 6,000 children dying per month, and that's from war crimes, starvation, disease and stuff like that. So there's a serious problem. Our only hope is that this man will be taken out of office.

All My Children leaves TV

TV execs consider soaps a losing cause, more costly to produce than talk or reality shows and with a dwindling audience Show may continue online

Tissues were on hand but there were few tears among two dozen soap opera fans gathered to watch All My Children sign off from ABC on Friday after more than 40 years.

That's because the screen faded to black with a gunshot and a cliffhanger — an indication that the story may not be dead, even if the television series is.

ABC has licensed the story to a production company that is hoping to keep the All My Children going online after the first of next year.

Carolyn Hinsey, author of Afternoon Delight: Why Soaps Still Matter, organized a watching party at a Manhattan sports bar as a message to television executives who apparently think soap operas don't matter anymore.

Two of ABC's three daytime dramas, All My Children and One Life to Live, were cancelled this year. That leaves only four soaps on network television.

"The soap fans are still there," said Marie White, who drove in from Baltimore for the party. "It's just that Nielsen doesn't count them."

Nielsen, the television ratings company, doesn't count White. She keeps up with her favourites online these days.

The big ending

- The final episode ended with most of the show's characters together for a party — celebrating engagements, a pregnancy and some medical miracles.
- Conflict: Yet the character J.R., riled because he lost his business and fortune and because his wife left to raise their baby son with a lesbian, lurked outside with a gun.
- Suspense: The series ended as he fired. Left unseen was who, if anyone, J.R. shot.

He ‘affects me to my core’

Jack Huston talks about the chilling and endearing character he plays on Boardwalk Empire

MACALL B. POLAY/HBO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Jack Huston portrays Richard Harrow in a scene from Boardwalk Empire.

As an actor, Jack Huston works wonders with just half a face, a gravelly, flat voice and cruel difficulty speaking.

Fortunately, those afflictions aren’t his but instead are borne by Richard Harrow, the tragically disfigured World War I veteran he plays on the HBO drama Boardwalk Empire.

Let the record show that, in a recent interview, the 28-year-old Huston is leading-man handsome, expansive and well-spoken in his native British accent.

But he says Harrow is a character “that is part of me, who affects me to my core. There is something so affecting about how brave and how lost he is.”

Even with limited screen time on the character-packed, actor-rich Boardwalk, Harrow last year had a similarly wrenching effect on viewers, haunting them as a combat-maimed conscience in his post-war America and as the ghoulish psychopath a war creates.

The series returned for its new season yesterday, with Huston upgraded from recurring player to a regular cast member, while his character promises to be even more galvanizing as a figure of both pathos and dread.

“The character took on a life of his own,” says Huston, and, however tormented such a life might be, “that’s nice.”

Musicians weigh in on new music sharing platforms like iCloud

As the music industry reluctantly drifts further and further away from selling tangible products, and with more and more online options for listening, we thought we'd find out how musicians feel about Spotify, which lets listeners share and listen to complete albums for free, or the coming iCloud, which will allow users to store all of their mp3s with a third party, however illegally the files may have been obtained?

Changing up sound

Stephen Malkmus talks about how working with Beck flipped his script ◆ New sound more 'artsy'

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

Stephen Malkmus just moved his wife and two children to Berlin. But it has nothing to do with the reasons that artsy rock 'n' rollers have traditionally gone there. "Even though I know this is a big place to take drugs and party, it's also like a really child-friendly place too," he says.

A change has done the former Pavement frontman good in his professional situation too. For his fifth album with his band, the Jicks, he brought in Beck to produce.

The result is Mirror Traffic, a collection of songs that see Malkmus' witty turns of phrases married to sounds that are more artsy than the straight-ahead guitar.

▶ Stephen Malkmus

Walk me through the evolution of Beck being somebody you might have admired as a contemporary to somebody that could produce your album.

It's a really short walk. He called and said he was a producer now. I hadn't heard from him and then out of the blue … he mentioned that. It just happened to coincide with the time we were going to be recording, and we were looking to find someone cool who wasn't a really obvious choice.

Were there any moments in working with him where there was any resistance, either on your part or his?

Well, yeah. He would often want to make things a little less classic rock-sounding. Some of the songs that were just more standard Jicks songs, he would want to put the guitars in direct and plug them right into the board without an amp and make them sound more up front and things poke out more.

Where were you when...

20 years on, people still recall where they were when Nevermind landed

FRANK MICELOTTA/GETTY IMAGES

Perhaps the most influential album of a generation, Nirvana's Nevermind still stands the test of time.

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

"I just put it on, and I can remember, like, where I was standing, what the room looked like, and everything."
JONAH HILL

In a few months the baby on the cover of Nirvana's Nevermind album will be old enough to drink.

Although two decades have passed since it came out, no single album has shaken up the music industry and popular culture since.

Seriously, radio stations that boast of being the cutting edge of rock are still playing this stuff.

Tomorrow, Universal Music Enterprises is releasing several 20th anniversary reissues.

Some of the new mixes are so revealing and raw that songs you have been hearing for two decades sound brand new.

Here we look back with some of the people who were close to the epicentre of Nirvana's Nevermind.

Bright Eyes singer Conor Oberst:
"My oldest brother and his friends would always watch MTV, and be hanging out. I remember walking in the room one day and they were all really excited about it, and I didn't really know what it was, but they turned up the TV, and everybody got quiet, and watched it. … I didn't know quite what to think of it, actually."

tUnE-yArDs singer Merril Garbus:
"Probably babysitting where the family had MTV, which we didn't. I thought the title was funny because of the deodorant. And good music is good music... Every one of my friends was very familiar with Nirvana's music. But I think generally I felt distant from that kind of rock 'n' roll. I was not cool, and I was probably listening to mid-'90s Michael Jackson and the oldies radio station instead of Nirvana."

Katie Holmes:
"I remember I was at my friend's house and she shared it with me and I was just blown away."

Jonah Hill:
"I remember so specifically the first time I heard Nirvana. My camp counselor — and I was like whatever age I was when Nevermind came out, so I was like seven or eight —was really into good rock music, and all kinds of music. He was actually a great influence on me, because he gave me all those records. He gave me the first Ween album. I was like eight! … And Nevermind, I just put it on, and I can remember, like, where I was standing, what the room looked like, and everything. It was that memorable of an experience to hear it for the first time."

Director Guillermo del Toro:
"I was watching MTV in Mexico City and it came through a cable channel over there and I thought, 'That sounded unlike anything I had heard.' Because it was incredibly free and grungy, of course, but … emotionally shattering."

Lindsay Lohan is reportedly clashing with her rumoured new boyfriend's estranged wife, according to the New York Post.

Lohan is said to be dating New York hotel magnate Vikram Chatwal and even staying at his house, though she was reportedly instructed to make herself scarce before Chatwal's wife, Priya Sachdev, got back to town.

A miffed Lohan then reportedly confronted Chatwal at a dinner he was hosting at his hotel.

"Priya was very dignified, but Lindsay was so rude," a source tells the newspaper.

"She acted as if she'd had no idea Vikram was married and tried to make it clear that Vikram was her friend. Others had to step in to calm things down."

Lohan's rep insists the two are not romantically involved.

Out, I say

Stains are inevitable, whether it's a red wine spill on a crisp white shirt or grass stains on your child's freshly washed jeans. The good news is there are tips and tricks to getting even the toughest stains out like red wine, grass and blood the first time.

• DON'T — Rub the stain. This will cause the stain to penetrate further into the fabric.

• DO — Dampen the stain using only cold water. For blood stains gently place salt onto the area and fold the stain letting the salt absorb. When the blood is nearly gone, launder in cold water with a detergent that works in cold water.

Is Sarah Palin a bad mom?

A new book alleges so
Parenting expert Tanith Carey shares what moms should do if they're faced with similar situations

GETTY IMAGES

Sarah Palin

The Rogue, a controversial new book by journalist Joe McGinniss, paints Sarah Palin, the former Alaskan governor, as a coke-snorting, sexually loose harridan. It's unflattering, especially for a mother of five.

We shared some of the most-headline-making accusations with Tanith Carey, a family expert, journalist and author of Where Has My Little Girl Gone? Moms out there might find themselves in similar situations. What should they do?

Palin may have done drugs in the past

The book alleges Palin snorted cocaine off an oil drum during a snowmobiling trip.

SAYS CAREY: "If you did take drugs, explain they always carry the danger that they can make you behave in a way that is out of control, could earn you a criminal record or ruin your career. They also carry the risk of addiction. Explain why and how you made the decision to stop taking them — and make it clear what your attitude is to them now."

She may have had an affair while married

... allegedly with her husband's business partner, although all parties have denied this.

SAYS CAREY: "Children have keen antennae and it's very likely they have already guessed there is something wrong, so be honest. Don't try and justify it — or get them to see your partner as the villain. Expect to face a lot of anger if you are the person who cheated in a marriage, as kids will see it as an abandonment of them, as well as your spouse. But keep them talking."

She may have been sexually promiscuous

... allegedly with Miami Heat basketball star Glen Rice.

SAYS CAREY: "If you are asked about your sexual history, the best policy is to be truthful and tell them about your own experiences in an age appropriate way. But also underline how important sex is at its best as part of a meaningful long-term relationship. Explain that it's never a good idea to use sex to validate yourself or fix an insecurity — as it rarely works."

She would reportedly leave her kids to "fend for themselves"

One source reportedly tells McGinniss: "'I'd walk into that kitchen and Bristol and Willow would be sitting there with a burnt pot of Kraft mac and cheese on the stove ... and Sarah would be up in her bedroom with the door closed saying she didn't want to be disturbed.'"

"If you are asked about your sexual history, the best policy is to be truthful."
TANITH CAREY

SAYS CAREY: "Of all the accusations, this is potentially the most damaging. It is at the serious end of spectrum of accusations that are levelled against mothers. As such, it's also most likely to cause the most long-term damage to the parent-child relationship because it implies neglect, which goes against all we expect from parents. In Palin's case, it would very much depend on how often this happened and how old her kids were at the time — and what the risks to them were. But we do live in a society where mothers are expected to wait on kids hand and foot from the tweens and beyond — and that is not good for their independence or self-esteem. Mothers also need to be able to acknowledge that they need down-time too." SAM CASTONE

2. In a large bowl, mix together butter and sugar. Stir in egg, lemongrass and ginger until well combined. Add flour, baking soda and salt; mix until dough forms.
3. Scoop dough by teaspoonful and place on baking sheets lined with parchment paper. Bake for 7 to 8 minutes or until cookies are lightly golden.
4. Let cool and dust with powdered sugar.

Makes 24 cookies.

LOOKING TO MAKE GREEN FROM INVESTING IN GREEN

I'm new to investing and am doing some research. What are some green companies or stocks I should look into? Kristin of Vancouver

QUEEN OF GREEN

LINDSAY COULTER
GREEN@METRONEWS.CA

Let's start with the term. What you're searching for is called socially responsible investing (SRI). SRI is what you get when environmental, social and governance factors come together in the selection and management of investments.

SRI investments take into account environmental sustainability or stewardship, labour practices, human rights and corporate governance.

Chances are good — but not guaranteed — that you won't be supporting businesses involved in alcohol, tobacco, gambling, weapons or mining.

"SRI investments take into account environmental sustainability."

It also goes beyond "green" companies.

Investments are screened for things like human-rights violations, community involvement and environmental performance. And why shouldn't you be able to align your financial goals with your personal values? An excellent Canadian resource is the Social Investment Organization. It's a national membership-based organization that includes financial institutions, investment firms, financial advisors and various organizations and individuals interested in socially responsible investment.

The organization has a series of fact sheets designed to answer questions like "Do social investors sacrifice returns?" or "What is community investing?"

Although most mainstream banks don't carry ethical funds, most credit unions do, so it's worth asking. We can play the supply-and-demand game, too. The more of us that ask for socially responsible investments, the better.

TTC Advisory Committee on Accessible Transportation (ACAT)

INVITATION FOR APPLICATION

To facilitate community input into the planning, development, and implementation of accessible transit, the Toronto Transit Commission relies on the TTC Advisory Committee on Accessible Transportation (ACAT).

Its role is to represent the needs and concerns of people with disabilities and seniors who use the TTC. It provides guidance and policy advice to the Commission and staff on issues pertaining to the ways and means of improving both conventional and Wheel-Trans services.

Five positions on the committee are open to residents of the City of Toronto who have disabilities, as well as, seniors or others who have a knowledge of and an interest in, accessible transportation issues. Applicants must be willing to make a commitment of a minimum of 7 hours per week, to attend meetings normally held during regular business hours.

Interested applicants must attend an information session at Toronto City Hall, 100 Queen Street West, to obtain more information about the committee and its function. Sessions will be held in Committee Room 2 on Tuesday, October 4th, 2011 from 7:00 pm to 9:00 pm, and on Friday, October 7th, 2011 from 1:00 pm to 3:00 pm. Application forms will be distributed only to attendees after the seminars.

Those interested in attending the sessions who have any special needs, please call Grace at Wheel-Trans, weekdays 8:00 am to 12:00 noon at (416) 393-4180 or the TTY line at (416) 393-4555 or email to acat@ttc.ca.

Easy, healthy pizza pockets

Serve a snack kids love — but without all the fat and calories

This recipe is fast, easy, and it replicates a convenience food your kids will love, and that you can feel good about.

Tips:

- Hide any vegetable your child doesn't like in these pockets. Kids will devour it once it's covered in sauce and melted cheese.
- Choose bread slices that are square. Square slices are easier to fold in half than rectangular slices.

MATTHEW MEAD/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ You can hide the nutrition in these pizza pockets.

Ingredients:

- 1 link raw Italian turkey sausage, casing removed (about 125 g/4 oz)
- 1 small zucchini, coarsely shredded
- 60 g (2 oz) fresh mozzarella cheese, coarsely shredded
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) no-salt, no-sugar, fat-free marinara sauce
- 12 leaves fresh basil, torn into bite-size pieces
- 8 slices whole-wheat bread, flattened with a rolling pin
- Extra-virgin olive oil cooking spray

Preparation:

1. Heat oven to broil. In a small saute pan over medium heat, cook sausage until cooked through, using a wooden spoon or spatula to break it into crumbles as it cooks. Drain off any fat.
2. In a medium bowl, mix zucchini, mozzarella, marinara, basil and cooked sausage. Place flattened bread on a work surface. Spoon zucchini mixture evenly in middle of each piece of bread. Fold one corner of each slice to opposite corner and seal edges by pressing with a fork. Trim off excess crust.
3. Place pockets on a baking sheet. Lightly spray both sides of each pocket with olive oil cooking spray. Place on a rack 10 to 12 cm (4 to 5 inches) under broiler and broil until browned and crisp, 2 to 3 minutes. Flip each pocket and then brown other side under broiler, 1 to 2 minutes more. Makes 4 servings (2 pockets per serving).

Celery root brings out salmon flavour

Preparation:

1. In a large bowl, mix the yogurt, tahini and the reserved ginger liquid. Season with salt.
2. Add apples, celery root and chopped picked ginger. Toss gently to coat apples and celery root evenly. Set aside for five minutes.
3. Meanwhile, divide smoked salmon between four serving plates. Sprinkle with the sesame seeds, then season with black pepper.
4. Add watercress to the apple and celery mixture and toss to coat with yogurt sauce. Divide salad between the serving plates.

Ingredients:

- 125 ml (1/2 cup) fat-free plain Greek-style yogurt
- 10 ml (2 tsp) tahini
- 22 ml (1 1/2 tbsp) pickled ginger, roughly chopped, plus 15 ml (1 tbsp) of its liquid
- Salt, to taste
- 2 Granny Smith apples, grated on a box grater
- 1 medium celery root, peeled and grated on a box grater
- 225 g (8 oz) cold smoked salmon (lox), thinly sliced
- 10 ml (2 tsp) sesame seeds, lightly toasted
- Ground black pepper, to taste
- 1 L (4 cups) watercress

Horrible bosses can be psychos too: Study

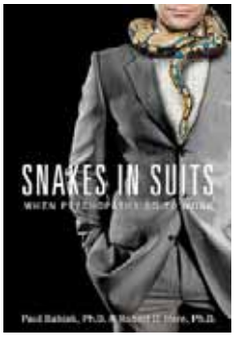
ROMINA MCGUINNESS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Do you hate your boss? Does their vileness go beyond them passing your work off as their own or making you deal with their dirty laundry?

Paul Babiak, psychologist and co-author of Snakes in Suits: When Psychopaths Go to Work, analyzed the personality traits of over 200 corporate professionals across America.

He used the standard Psychopathy Checklist developed by co-author Robert Hare from University of British Columbia.

He found that four per cent of them exceeded or reached the cut off point for psychopathy — that's an average of one in 25 people.



Although psychos are weak on paper, Babiak suggests that they thrive in the corporate world thanks to their ability to convince upper management of their strengths.

"Psychopaths always make a good first impression. They are both charming and grandiose. In reality, they have low managerial skills and have zero loyalty to their company or profession. All they care about is themselves," he explained to Metro.

In short, psychopaths hide behind a beautiful mask. They come across as charismatic leaders but underneath there's nothing but a hollow core.

Studies have shown them to have difficulty in understanding the true nature of feeling, explaining their emotional poverty and acute insensitiveness.

Half of Babiak's maniac clients have come from the financial service industry. Could the desire for money be meddling with the mind?

"They're parasitic predators, opportunists that latch on to people like parasites and suck out their resources. They seek an easy way to live life so are naturally attracted to where the money is: financial business."

Rays keep focus on themselves as Sox slide

No major league team has overcome a nine-game deficit in September to claim a post-season berth ◐ Series with Yankees next for Rays

REINHOLD MATAY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Tampa Bay Rays' Ben Zobrist is called safe as he dives into home plate after an inside-the-park home run during the first inning of yesterday's game.

The Tampa Bay Rays are focusing on their playoff push rather than the shocking slide of the Boston Red Sox.

B.J. Upton and Ben Zobrist homered in the first inning to back Wade Davis, and the Rays beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2 yesterday to pull within a half-game of the Red Sox for the AL wild-card lead.

"It's more about the ascension of the Rays right now," Tampa Bay manager Joe Maddon said. "Obviously, they're struggling a bit, and that happens. But from our perspective, it's more important what we do."

RAYS	BLUE JAYS
5	2

Evan Longoria and Kelly Shoppach also homered for the Rays, who have closed despite going just 14-10 in September.

"The more pressure you put on yourself, the tougher it is to play baseball, which is probably what the Red Sox are doing right now," Davis said.

Tampa Bay closes at home against the Yankees, while the Red Sox play at Baltimore.

Bautista hurt

- Jose Bautista left after five innings with a bruise below his left knee after hurting it on Ben Zobrist's first-inning homer.
- He is not expected to play tonight, but hasn't ruled out returning before the regular season ends.

Cards draw within one of Braves

The St. Louis Cardinals pulled within one game of the Atlanta Braves in the NL wild-card race as Rafael Furcal hit a tiebreaking home run in the eighth inning yesterday in a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

St. Louis trailed Atlanta by 10 ½ games on Aug. 26, but the Cardinals have won 15 of their last 20.

Trailing 2-1, St. Louis tied it in the seventh on Yadier Molina's 14th homer. The next inning, Furcal homered off Randy Wells.

Making what might have been his final home appearance for the Cardinals, Albert Pujols went 0 for 4 and stopped his streak of reaching base in 40 successive games.

Remaining games

The Cardinals close the regular season with a three-game series at Houston (55-104), which has the worst record in the major leagues.

- Atlanta hosts Philadelphia (99-60), which has the best mark in the majors.

Patriots no longer Bills' bully

DAVID DUPREY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Rian Lindell and Brian Moorman celebrate the Bills' game-winning field goal yesterday.

Hold on to your seats, the Buffalo Bills are showing they're for real.

Rian Lindell hit a 28-yard field goal as time expired to cap a stunning comeback for a 34-31 victory over the New England Patriots yesterday. The win snapped Buffalo's 15-game losing streak against the Patriots that dated to 2003, and sparked a wild celebration in which stadium officials guarded the goal posts to ensure fans didn't bring them down.

The Bills (3-0) won courtesy of yet another Ryan Fitzpatrick-led rally, overcoming a 21-0 second-quarter deficit. It was reminiscent of what the Bills did last week when they came back from down 21-3 to beat Oakland 38-35.

Tom Brady threw for 386 yards and four scores for New England (2-1) and set a league record for most yards passing over a three-game stretch, but matched a career-high four interceptions.

Around the NFL

In other action yesterday:

- The New York Giants (2-1) took advantage of the Philadelphia Eagles (1-2) with Michael Vick injured again. Eli Manning threw four touchdown passes, and the Giants beat the Eagles 29-16. Vick, who started after suffering a concussion last week, left with a broken right hand in the fourth quarter.
- Matthew Stafford threw for 378 yards and two TDs to rally the Lions (3-0) from a 20-0 deficit before Jason Hanson kicked a 32-yard field goal in overtime as Detroit beat the Minnesota Vikings (0-3) 26-23.
- Cam Newton didn't pass for a ton of yards, he simply found Greg Olsen over the middle for a 16-yard TD with 4:20 left to lift Carolina (1-2) to a 16-10 win over the Jacksonville Jaguars (1-2).

Ticats cruise to win in Moncton

CFL returns East for second game

Marcus Thigpen made the most of his first start of the season as a Tiger-Cats receiver.

Thigpen caught two of Kevin Glenn's three touchdown passes and ran in a missed field goal as Hamilton took this year's Touchdown Atlantic game with a 55-36 victory over the Calgary Stampeders yesterday in Moncton, N.B.

The Ticats improved to 6-6 on the season while Calgary dropped to 7-5 after the CFL's second visit out East, which drew 20,153 to the University of Moncton campus.

Thigpen's highlight play came when he returned Rene Paredes' missed field goal 118 yards to give Hamilton a 34-21 lead heading into the final quarter. He finished with 274 yards receiving.

Glenn finished 16-for-23 with 276 yards and no interceptions.

Leafs make more camp cuts

Toronto sends promising centre Colborne to Marlies for further seasoning

Who's next?

The Maple Leafs cut 14 players yesterday to get down to a more workable roster of 29. But that's still six too many as camp heats up for the final three exhibition games.

"The players are dictating this," said Leafs assistant general manager Dave Poulin. "Some people are making decisions very difficult for us right now, which is the beauty of depth in an organization.

"This is what we want. We want it to be really, really difficult to decide who gets to be on the Toronto Maple Leafs. That means we're a better hockey club."

Joe Colborne, believed to be in the running for third-line duty, was among those sent to the Marlies.

"He played well in spurts, but he has to get more consistent. He knows that. And as is the case with most young players, they have to get more consistency," said Poulin. "There's a lot of guys who can play this game for one or two or three games. But you have to play it over the course of the season and be consistent."

"As we get better as a hockey team, the bar keeps getting higher and higher. It's not good enough just to make the team ... you have to contribute."
LEAFS ASSISTANT GM DAVE POULIN

Luca Caputi, Jeff Finger, Ryan Hamilton and Mike Zigomanis were put on waivers. They'll know by noon tomorrow if another team is interested, or if they'll play for the AHL Marlies.

Crunch time at Leafs' camp

As Leafs assistant GM Dave Poulin pointed out, cuts are only temporary. The roster that finishes the year is rarely the same as the one that starts. Here are some spots to follow as camp continues:

Veterans in trouble

- Tyler Bozak [centre] Had been having a great camp until a recent injury. If the Leafs are interested in Phoenix holdout Kyle Turris, things could get very uncomfortable.
- Mike Komisarek [defence] Having a good camp, looking very confident. Has a limited no-trade clause and a list of about 10 teams he'd accept a trade to. He's from Long Island, and the Islanders need a defenceman ... so connect the dots.
- Carl Gunnarsson [defence] May be the Leafs' best overall defenceman. But there's no hype and he might be too nice for his own good. He's a John Ferguson draft pick and there are fewer and fewer of them around.

Bubble Boys

- Nazem Kadri [forward]: He's just 20. If he doesn't make the team out of camp he'll be called up pretty quickly. He has plenty of time to develop.
- Matt Frattin [forward]: He's 23 and his window for success may be shorter. He has to prove quickly that he can score in the NHL. Coming out of college, it may be better to start in the AHL.
- Jake Gardiner [defence]: The star of camp so far. He may deserve to make the team, but numbers will probably dictate he starts with the Marlies.

- Ben Scrivens [goalie]: The best goalie in camp so far, but he's destined for the Marlies barring an injury to James Reimer or Jonas Gustavsson. He may be No. 2 on depth chart, but he has to play a ton and won't if he's with the Leafs.

Send a KISS

You can now post your kiss, and read even more kisses, online at metronews.ca/kiss.

Henry H - You dont understand how happy you make me. I love you so much and I am so happy that I was the one you chose. We have been through somethings and are still growing and making this a stronger relationship. Or friendship turned into love and now everyday I cant stop thinking about you. We are almost at a year and I know our relationship will last longer than that. :) <3 I LOVE YOU. 03-29-11 <3
FROM SUMMER C

Cho cho you're sleeping right now:) you look so cute as always <3 i was playing sudoku and i seen this kiss thing where anyone can post what they want to their friends or love ones. I find it cute so i just want to tell you that i love you and that you're the one i want to marry! You're my first and my last. 080808<3
FROM BABYCHO:)

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Don't look at challenges as things to be avoided but as things to be used for your benefit.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Try to be enthusiastic about what you are being asked to do.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 What comes your way today will be pleasant, and what comes your way tomorrow will be out of this world.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 YMake an effort to patch up any minor disputes you may be having with partners and loved ones.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 You will be made the proverbial offer you cannot refuse either today and, yes, it's a pretty good deal.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Stop worrying and start working.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Don't judge yourself by other people's standards because the simple fact is their standards are way below what yours should be ♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Follow your passion wherever it may lead you.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If ever there was a time to make an extra effort that time is now.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Some kind of breakthrough is imminent, so stop fretting that you have not done enough because there is still plenty of time.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 There is no such thing as luck: you get what you deserve in life, nothing less and nothing more.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Think in terms of abundance, not in terms of lack. Your mind creates your world.
